Dear Susan,

Today arrived here your letter of 5th September and immediately, I sent you a telegame explaining the impossibility to wait for you in Mongofre.

Jacqueline and I, are leaving the same 21st of September to Barcelona to attend official business. After this, I have to attend business in Madrid and probably Lisbone.

In October, we have a family celebration and the house will be in a terrible overbooking.

In the second part of October, we have to go to Germany with the Coral of Cuitadella who has to sing in many places of this country.

In November, we have to go to America, most probably to New-York and we will be back in December. As I tell you in my today's telegame, it will be by Christmas when we will finally be free in Mongofre.

Sorry to have to tell you this but such is life!

Give my best regards to Stephanie and Michael, from Jacqueline and I.
