Dear Susan,

Thank you for your letter of 8th April, which I received recently coming back from Australia.

This letter should have been answered before but a big shower and a thunder storm fell upon Mongofre and my room and my new library were flooded.

Therefore, we have to be waiting for a new stationery, new typewriter and the reconstruction is going on and we look ahead with more and more troubles.

In September, we will wait for you but only between the 7th and the 14th. Later on, we have a very important family affair and we will not have none a minute nor a room.

I hope that this invitation is accepted by you and with the hope of the joy to see you again, Jacqueline and I send you all our love.
